GAVE $24,000 ON SPOOK ORDER

OLD MAN SAYS HE DEEDED HOUSE TO MEDIUM'S WIFE.

Stothers's Daughters Get Wise and Took Him to Court—Fear of Death Removed Man Worth $200,000 Tells How Horewitz Got His Rents and Coerced Him.

Frank Horowitz, who presses cops' trousers and claims to converse with spooks It the same time in his little tailor's shop, at 2635 Third avenue, has again been heard from. This time Horowitz is accused by John Stothers, a sixty-year-old real estate owner, of The Bronx, who is said to be worth $200,000.

Horowitz will have to answer in the Harlem police court to-day the charge of Mrs. Anna Richter of 656 East 141st street, who says he obtained $1,100 in small sums from her on the false pretence that he would get the "spirits" to use their influence in securing for her son a lifelong job. Mrs. Richter had the tailor-medium arrested on July 22, and the next day he was held by Magistrate Crane in the Morrisania police court. Mrs. Richter says that Horowitz said he didn't fear being arrested, as all he had to do was wink at the Judge, who would immediately be forced under a hypnotic spell, and then he, Horowitz, would be discharged. If Horowitz winked. it didn't feaze Magistrate Crane.

Herowitz's second financially successful mediation became known yesterday when Stothers was haled to the Morrisania police court by his daughters, Mrs. W. C. Roll of 325 Trinity avenue, and Mrs. A. C. Roll of A41 East 142d street. The two women married brothers. Stothers lives with the last named. The sisters complained that their father was giving his money to the trousers pressing spook summoner. When the old man reached the door of the court he halted and begged to be allowed to go home. He was trembling and the court attendants inquired concerning the reason for his fears. "Oh, don't take me in there " he pleaded,

Horowitz said last night that the spirits would strike me dead as I crossed the threshold of this courthouse."

The old man was so confident that death awaited him in the doorway that he was in convulsions of terror. His condition was pitiable, but Magistrate Baker

"Bring him in!" Two husky cops used their usual physical persuasion and Stothers was dragged to the bar alive. Once inside and finding that he was still very much alive. Stothers plucked up courage, and a smile of relief shone on his hitherto terror stricken countenance. He lost all fear of Horowitz and revealed the game of the tailor in a full statement.

"I met Horowitz a year ago," said he. and he got his wife to tell my fortune. She said that I was soon to fall heir to a fortune of $300,000 that was awaiting me in Ireland. I told her that would be fine, as I already had considerable money. Horowitz and his wife became interested and questioned me concerning my property. I told of the houses I owned and the rentals realized

"Horowitz got me interested in spiritualism and finally told me that the spirits had decreed that I cease allowing others to collect my rents. Some time later he said that the spirits ordered me to allow him to collect the rents of two of my houses. One of these, at 449 East 148th street, pays $32 a month, and the other, at 467 East 152d street, returns a monthly rental of $42. Horowitz has been collecting these rents and keeping the money ever since.

Recently he prevailed on me to deed ever to him a house I owned in 142d street, between Willis and Alexander avenues. I did so because he said the spirits would wreak terrible vengeance on me if I refused. I was afraid of both the tailor and the spirits, so I transferred the property house and lot are worth $24,000.

"About this time my daughters began to get wice to what I was doing, and made things lively for me by demanding an accounting. Horowitz, when told of this, consulted the spirits, and said that my latest orders were to leave my daughters and go live in a furnished room near his house. did; but my daughters made me come

"Well, you are a fine old soft mark," said Magistrate Baker, who had been listening to the story with great interest. "Did Horowitz?"

"Yes," said the old man. "I mean, did you release all claim to the property?"

Magistrate Baker was silent for some time, but, finally, turning to the two Mrs. Rolls he said: "There is nothing I can hold your father

He is discharged; but I advise you to take this matter to the Supreme Court as soon as possible."

BOGUS CITIZEN MILL. Supt. Morgan Says It Made $600,000 in

Year Selling Forged Papers. Since George W. Morgan, State Superintendent of Elections, joined forces with United States District Attorney Henry L. Burnett in the work of ferreting out fraudulent naturalization papers known to be in the possession of foreigners in this city, he has been threatened with proceedings by lawyers acting for Italian immigrants who have been subpostated by him to prove that they were rightfully entitled to the papers they held, and James F. Brande has announced that he intends to petition Gov. Odell to remove Mr. Morgan on the ground that Morgan is illegally compelling foreigners to testify against themselves when they answer to John Doe subpœnas.

"It is estimated," Mr. Morgan said last night, "that $600,000 has been made within the last year in the sale of fraudulent naturalization papers, that over 100,000 fraudulent naturalization papers have been old by those engaged in this illicit traffic sold by those engaged in this illicit traffic and that 30,000 of these have been issued in New York city.

"With great frequency immigrants display naturalization papers upon landing and say that they have simply been home on a visit. Upon investigation it was found that many of these certificates were forgeries throughout, being an exact copy of the certificates issued out of the District Clerk's office for the Southern District of New York. The seal was a counterfeit of the seal of the court, the signature had been forged and in all respects it was an exact copy of the original legal certificate. These were traced to Newark, where three Italians had a plant for printing such certificates, which were sold in the large cities of this country and in Italy. Immigrants desiring ready admission to the United States bought forged papers before leaving their native country and were admitted to this country without question. Criminals think that country and were admitted to this country without question. Criminals think that they will be more readily protected in their own countries if they can show that they are citizens of the United States. In many cases the forged papers have been bought by those seeking to avoid compulsory mili-

by those seeking to avoid compulsory min-tary service in Europe."

As a result of the work done by Mr. Mor-gan and the United States District Attor-ney's office, there has been, Mr. Morgan says, a reduction of 30 to 50 per cent. in the number of naturalization papers issued in some of the boroughs of the city. The reduction has been brought about by the scaring of professional witnesses.

HAD SUGAR BOWL IN HIS POCKET lawyer Lee of Tarrytown Held for Larceny-Suggests Friend Played a Joke.

John F. Lee, a lawyer, of Tarrytown, was arraigned before Acting Recorder Laverty in Hoboken yesterday morning, charged with the larceny of a silver sugar bowl from the dining car of a Lackawanna rain that arrived from Elmira on Tuesday train that arrived from Elmira on Tuesday evening. The bowl was found in his pocket when he was arrested.

In denying the charge, the lawyer explained that he had been to Elmira to see John B. Stanchfield, with whom, he says, he is interested in a business matter. While returning to New York he drank several glasses of beer with a friend on the train and the friend remarked that a sugar bowl would make a nice souvenir of the trip. Mr. Lee said he slept during the latter part of the journey and that when he got off the of the journey and that when he got off the train in Hoboken he found the sugar bowl in his coat pocket. EXCLUDED FROM THE MAILS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.-Fraud orders, debarring the United States Cereal Company, 27 William street, and the National Specialty Company, 1133 Broadway, New York, from the use of the mails were issued o-day by Postmaster-General Payne. The United States Cereal Company was a sort of "get-rich-quick" concern.

The evidence submitted to the Department showed that the company, which was organized by John R. # SULTAN SAYS HE'LL GIVE IN PROMISES FAVORABLE ANSWER TO AMERICAN DEMANDS.

Porte Sends Word to Minister Leishman That Communication May Be Expected in Few Days—Other Powers Likely to Bring Pressure in Our Behalf

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 10.-United States Minister Leishman received a message from the Porte to-day saying that a favorable communication with regard to the American demand upon Turkey for rights and privileges for American residents, equal to those accorded to other foreigners, might be expected in a day or two. Surprise is expressed in Turkish official quarters over the threatened action of the United States of breaking off diplomatic relations. The sending of American warships to Smyrna has hastened the decision of the Sultan to keep peace with the Washngton Government. WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 .- It can be stated on authority that the Cabinet at yesterday's meeting fully approved the plans of the State Department for forcing the Turkish Government to accede to the demands of the United States by withdrawing Minister Leishman from Constantinople and abruptly severing diplomatic relations. It has been decided not to send instructions to Rear Admiral Jewell, commanding the European squadron, until the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department has been advised of the squadron's arrival at Smyrna. The vessels left Villefranche for the Turkish port last Sunday, and, according to the calculations made at the Navy Department, are due to arrive at their destination some time this evening.

It can be said, however, that the United States Government will wait but a very little while longer for a reply to the demands presented to the Sultan by Minister Leishman in personal audience two weeks ago to-day.

Since that time Mr. Leishman has made a further demand upon the Porte, which is in the nature of an ultimatum, and, in the event of the Turkish Government still remaining obdurate, it is known that Mr. Leishman will be instructed to leave Constantinople and proceeed on board the flagship of the European squadron.

The acute stage in the Turkish situation brought about by the decided stand of the United States has undoubtedly created considerable concern in the capitals of those foreign nations which are signatories to the Paris treaty fixing the status of Turkey.

Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German Ambassador; Baron Hengelmuller von Hengervar, the Austrian Ambassador, and a representative of the French Ambassador have come to Washington in the last day or two to confer with the President regarding the Turkish situation. In view of this fact, it is not considered improbable that, rather than permit the United States to take extreme measures in bringing the Sultan to terms, the Powers in question will bring pressure to bear on the Sultan to induce him to grant the American demands, the justice of which is apparently admitted by these Powers without question.

WALDECK-ROUSSEAU DEAD. Former Premier of France Passes Away

as the Result of an Operation. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

PARIS, Aug. 10 .- Pierre Marie Waldeck-Rousseau, former Premier of France, died at Corbeil, a suburb of this city, this afternoon as the result of an operation for liver trouble. The operation was decided this morning to be a necessity. It was begun at noon and lasted two hours, the patient passing away soon after its completion.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau was born in Nantes France, Dec. 2, 1846. At that time his father was a prominent member of the Assembly. The son studied law at St. Lazare and practised law there for several years before set tling at Rennes. There his political career began in 1879 when he was elected Deputy began in 1879 when he was elected Deputy. He soon became prominent in the Republican Union, which did much toward bringing about the present republicanism. He was recognized as one of the best orators in the Assembly. His best work was for the reform of the judiciary.

In August, 1881, he was reelected, and three months later, although but 35 years old, he became Minister of the Interior in Gambetta's Cabinet. But the resignation of the Government in January of the following year came too soon for him to prove

After President Périer resigned, Waldeck-Rousseau was defeated for the Presidency by Felix Faure. In 1899 he was called upon to form his own Ministry, and after being in office for three years he resigned in 1902. His Ministry had the longest duration of any Cabinet under the Republican régime. The most important law passed in his Premiership was the Associations bill, in 1901.

ADVISED TO LOOK IN HER SAFE, SHE TOOK HER TIME.

Circular Describing Jewels as Missing Sent Out Against the Advice of the Pinkertons, but She Was Sure the Jewels Ought to Be in Their Case.

The Pinkerton officials in this city seemed o feel aggrieved yesterday because their statement as to the manner in which Mrs. Ogden Goelet recovered her long lost jewels was not accepted in all quarters t its face value.

"There never was any mystery in the natter-at least as far as we were con cerned," said Allan Pinkerton. "It was simply a case of misplacement. You might nisplace your pocket knife, just as Mrs. Goelet misplaced her jewels. We did no work to speak of, simply because there was nothing to be done until Mrs. Goelet had completed going over the ground she had covered since she last saw the lewels. This of course, included the opening of the safe n her house here in New York. We simply sat down and waited for this to be done feeling pretty certain from the circumstances as related to us that there had been no robbery and that the jewels would be found where their owner had left them.
"At no time was anybody under sus-

"At no time was anybody under suspicion of having taken the gems, and even the servants were not questioned. Many of them have been with Mrs. Goelet for years and she would not hear of anything being done that might lead them to believe they were suspected, even remotely, of having a hand in the disappearance of her jewelry. She said that if the jewels were lost she must have lost them herself.

"If we had had our way the circular describing the missing property would never have been sent out. But Mrs. Goelet was very sure that she had taken the jewelry with her to Newport from New York. We suggested the search of her safe here, and she was urged by several others, including her brother, Mr. Wilson, to go to New York and open the safe. She was the only one who had the combination.

"As to why she waited so long to take this step I have nothing to say, as I know nothing about Mrs. Goelet's social engagements or how she had planned to spend her time. After our first suggestion we did not mention the matter to Mrs. Goelet or her representatives again, knowing that she would open the safe when she saw fit to do so.

"There was not the slightest excuse for she would open the sale with to do so.

"There was not the slightest excuse for any one to drag in the name of a man who had been a guest at Mrs. Goelet's Newport house. As I told you, we never suspected any one of stealing the jewels. As for the man referred to, I never heard his name before to-day. We stand pat on the statement issued yesterday. That covers the ment issued yesterday. That covers the whole matter. There never was anything puzzling or complicated about it. Mrs. Goelet found her jewels just where she left them, and with that our interest in the matter ceased. She took her own time about coming to New York, and as she was the only person interested, I don't see why any one else should get excited about it."

George G. De Witt, attorney for Mrs. Goelet, corroborated the Pinkerton version of the finding of the jewels, which, he said, had never been out of his client's possession. It had been her custom, he said, to put the pearls, diamonds and rubles in the case which she took with her to Newport, but after she returned to New York from her son's wedding she inadvertently put them in the safe in another package. So sure was she that she had put them in the case that she could not be induced at first to come to New York and open the safe. She said she had always put the jewels in that case and that they should have been there when she opened it at Newport on July 19.

Chief of Police Richards left Newport on the Wickford boat this afternoon, and it is supposed that he is bound for New York to confer with Mrs. Goelet and the ROESSLE, HOTEL MAN, DEAD. Proprietor of the Arlington in Washington Passes Away in Paris. Theophilus Roessle, a well known hotel man, who for many years was proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., died at the Grand Hotel in Paris yesterday. Mr. Roessle's illness dated back six or seven weeks ago, when he was thrown into a state of excitement on a very hot day through the erroneous news that Mrs.

Roessle was seriously ill. Upon the advice of his physicians he went abroad two weeks ago in the hope that a sea voyage would benefit him. Mrs. Roessle accomweeks ago in the hope that a sea voyage would benefit him. Mrs. Roessle accompanied him.

Theophilus Roessle was born on the Schenectady Pike in the suburbs of Albany Aug. 31, 1834. His father was a German from Alsace-Lorraine and his mother was English. The elder Roessle managed the old Delavan Hotel at Albany, and when 15 years of age Theophilus started in with him there to learn the hotel business. He retained an interest in the Delavan House up to the time of his death. In 1869 he went with his father to Washington and opened the Arlington Hotel. From 1861 to 1890 he ran the Fort William Henry Hotel at Lake George.

In Gov. Morton's administration Mr. Roessle served as Quartermaster-General on his staff. He was a member of the Old Guard of New York and the American Colonization Society and for several years was president of the Hotel Men's National Association. His real estate holdings in this city and Washington are said to be worth nearly $2,000,000.

Mr. Roessle's first wife was a Miss Osborn, and their two children, Elwood Osborn Roessle, who was until recently lessee of the Gilsey House in New York, and Mrs. Edward N. Kenney of Albany, are living. Five years after his first wife's death he married Mrs. Nellie Taylor of San Francisco.

WARRANTS FOR A. B. HUTCHIN-SON AND MRS. HENDRICK.

Rich Boston Man's Wife Has Him Arrested in Scranton, Pa., for Improper Conduct With the Wife of the Man Who Figured in the Laura Biggar Case. SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 10 .- Arthur Burton

Hutchinson of Boston, a retired lawyer, broker and investor, said to be a millionaire, was arrested here to-day at the Lackawanna Valley House charged by his wife with adultery. The warrant was secured by Mrs. Hutchinson, who followed her husband to this city, with detectives, from their summer home in Chester, Vt. The warrant was issued for Hutchinson and Mrs C. C. Hendrick, wife of Dr. Hendrick of New York.

Mrs. Hendrick is stopping with her sisterin-law, Mrs. Frank Hallen, and the warrant was not served on her. When Hutchinso was arraigned before Alderman Ruddy Mrs. Hutchinson broke down and forgave him. As they were leaving the office, Detective C. B. Hall of New York city stepped up to Hutchinson and arrested him on similar warrant on behalf of Dr. Hendrick He was held under $600 bail for a hearing Aug. 22. Dr. Hendrick is coming here to-morrow.

Mrs. Hendrick said to a reporter to-night:

son is my lawyer, and came to see me on private business. I am suing for a divorce now. I had been with Hu tchinson only one hour. Dr. Hendrick has had detectives around the house for a week watching me. Agnes M. Hendrick is the wife of Dr. Charles C. Hendrick, who was a co-defendant two years ago with Laura Biggar the actress, in a conspiracy trial at Freehold N. J., which became notorious. Henick and the actress, together with Samuel The CASINO Broadway & 30th St. Evgs. 8:20,

"It is some of the doctor's work. Hutchindrick and the actrees, together with Samuel Stanton, a justice of the peace of Hoboken, were tried on a charge of conspiring to get the estate of the late Henry M. Bennett of Pittsburg by alleging that the woman was Bennett's widow and that she had had a child by him.

The whole thing hinged on whether such a child by Bennett had ever existed, but the jury of Monmouth county farmers astonished the country by acquitting the woman and convicting both men. Hendrick got out on bail pending a new trial, and went on the vaudeville stage with Laura Biggar.

Before their troubles began the actress had lived at the doctor's sanitarium at Bayonne and Mrs. Hendrick swore out a warrant for their arrest, but when the Free-hold trial came on Mrs. Hendrick went there and agreed to stand by her husband if he would promise to leave the Biggar woman as soon as the case was ended. His dramatic promise to leave the Biggar woman as soon as the case was ended. His dramatic promise to the trial the wife sat beside the accused actrees in the court room with her arm about her, kissing her at frequent intervals. After the trial when Dr. Hendrick began to travel about the country with the actress, Mrs. Hendrick explained the court room scenes at Freehold by saying:

"I kissed that woman in the court to make

"I kissed that woman in the court to make the jury think that I believed in my husband, but every time I kissed her I whispered to her that I hated her for stealing my husband from me."

West Hendrick sued her hus-

her that I hated her for steating my husband from me."

A year ago Mrs. Hendrick sued her husband for separation and for non-support. At the same time she sued Laura Biggar for $50,000 damages for the alienation of the doctor's jail-worn affections. Orders for the arrest of both the doctor and the actress were issued and after that they did their theatrical stunts in theatres outside of New York county

The case got another airing last January when Hendrick went to his wife's home in Brooklyn and selzed his nine-year-old boy. Thomas, and got out of the State with him. Since then Mrs. Hendrick has secured her decree of separation and the doctor has begun a counter suit for divcree. He has been living recently with his children on Laura Biggar's farm in Chester, Vt.
